

Listed below are a set of web links dart players will find useful.

<http://playdartsamerica.com>

Do you want an easy way to roughly judge your skill level? The rating this link generates is a good start. As you will see, it uses many 501 game results to get an average # of darts to finish across all those games. In general, if you average less than 30 darts, over many games, to finish a 501, you are A-League material.

<http://www.sewa-darts.com/index.php>

This is a dart players forum and a wealth of information. Join up, participate in the forums, use the practice games. Users range from very experienced players to beginners. The practice games are very useful and there is an online mechanism to record your highs in each of them and be ranked in the SEWA membership.

<http://www.facebook.com/SCCDA>

Did you know SCCDA had a Facebook page?